25X1

COUNTRY		TION_COLL-ILEXTPIAL
COON17/1	Czechoslovakia	REPOR	श
TOPIC	Kamenica nad Cir	ochou Airfield	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·	25X
	•			25X
EVALUATION		PLACE OBTAINED		25)
DATE OF CONT	IFNT.			25)
DATE OBTAINE		DATE PREPARED3	December 1954
REFERENCES_		immensum bi/711 by 1 111m1 /111bob/emissions
PAGES		AND R TVDE
	ENCLOSURES	(NO. & TIFE)
This	is UNEVALUATED		25X1
Inforr	mation
*
	nad Cirochou (485) leading from Kame The field covered covered with gras	4, an airfield was observed no 6 N/2200 E), just north of the enica nad Cirochou to Hummene (d an area about 1,000 x 800 me	railroad line 4857 N/2154 E). ters. It was
	Two low wooden by served as quarter	es and had no concrete runway. direction approximately from tuildings in the southeastern crs for the guard personnel and nel or parachute troops, who terms of the southeastern croops, who terms of the southeastern croops.	he middle of the field. orner of the field for soldiers either
	Two low wooden by served as quarter air force persons at the field. A small building The parachutists, were recognized parachute insign twin-engine airce exercises involved.	direction approximately from t uildings in the southeastern c rs for the guard personnel and	he middle of the field. orner of the field for soldiers either mporarily practiced ext to the barracks. ticing on the ground, t vizor and the single-engine and e field. Some
	Two low wooden by served as quarter air force persons at the field. A small building The parachutists, were recognized in parachute insigns twin-engine aircrexercises involve which departed as a comment. Comment. location of Kamerat the field are hangars were undefield and 1 three eastern.corner.	direction approximately from to didings in the southeastern or for the guard personnel and nel or parachute troops, who term with a wind cone on ten was now who were repeatedly seen practice on the left breast. About 4 raft were usually parked at the different confirms previous in the exercise. The report confirms previous in the southwest insufficient. According to present the second of the statements of the propertice of the statements of the statements of the statement of t	he middle of the field. orner of the field for soldiers either mporarily practiced ext to the barracks. ticing on the ground, t vizor and the single-engine and e field. Some twin-engine aircraft afformation on the on the installations evicus reports, 2 stern section of the ed in the south- achute units	25)
	Two low wooden by served as quarter air force persons at the field. A small building The parachutists, were recognized in parachute insigns twin-engine aircrexercises involve which departed as a comment. Comment. location of Kamerat the field are hangars were undefield and 1 three eastern.corner.	direction approximately from to diddings in the southeastern cars for the guard personnel and nel or parachute troops, who termined with a wind cone on ten was not who were repeatedly seen prace by their red round caps without is on the left breast. About 4 raft were usually parked at the different confirms previous in the exercise. The report confirms previous in the southwest insufficient. According to present the exercise of the construction in the southwest construction in the southwest construction was construct.	he middle of the field. orner of the field for soldiers either mporarily practiced ext to the barracks. ticing on the ground, t vizor and the single-engine and e field. Some twin-engine aircraft afformation on the on the installations evicus reports, 2 stern section of the ed in the south- achute units	25)

CLASSIFICATION CONFIDENTIAL

NALUATION PLACE OBTAINED 253 WALUATION PLACE OBTAINED 255 ATE OF CONTENT ATE OBTAINED 255 AGES 1 E This is UNEVALUATED Information 25X1 EMARKS 25X1 EMARKS 25X1 EMARKS 25X1 EMARKS 25X1 Linformation 25X1 Linformation 25X1 Linformation 25X1 EMARKS 25X1 Linformation 25X	COUNTRY	Czechoslova REPORT
VALUATION PLACE OBTAINED 253 ATE OF CONTENT. ATE OBTAINED DATE PREPARED 3 Decombor 1954 EFFRENCES AGES 1 E This is UNEVALUATED Information 25X1 EMARKS 25X1 EMARKS 25X1 EMARKS 25X1 LING The field covered an converse the second of the field covered and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for acidiers, either air force personnel or paracinute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small huiding with a wind once on top was next to the barrance. The paracinute indignic on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft when were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the paracinute indignic on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the loostfon of Farenica minffeld. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hargars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south. The information that Ozech paracinite units active at the field was received previously.
ATE OF CONTENT ATE OBTAINED LITIES IS UNEVALUATED Information LITIES IN UNEVALUATED LITIES IN UNIVERSAL AND LITIES IN UNIVERSA	TOPIC		-25 X 1
ATE OF CONTENT. ATE OBTAINED EFFERENCES AGES 1 E[This is UNEVALUATED			 	25×
ATE OBTAINED DATE PREPARED 3 December 1954 EFFRENCES AGES LEThis is UNEVALUATED Information EMARKS 25X1 25X1 25X1 EMARKS 25X1 25X1 25X1 The field covered an accovered with grass and had not concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southnesstern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers, either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind come on top was next to the barracks. The paruchutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by wheir red round caps without visor and the parachute ineignic on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the execuses. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Emenics airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. Scoreding to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south. The information that Czech parachute units acotice at the field was received previously.				25×
EFERENCES AGES EThis is UNEVALUATED 25X1	ATE OF CONTE		· · · · ·
EMARKS 25X1 1954, an airfield was observed twest of Kamenica 1956 in 1970 and 1970	ATE OBTAINED	DATE_PREPARED
Information 25X1 1954, an airfield was observed twest of Kamenica 1956 N ilroad line (N/2154 E). The field covered an acovered with grass and had the Concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southesshern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers, either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind come on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignic on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Commont. The report confirms previous information on the Tocation of Earenica sirfield. The statements on the Installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the Southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactive active active active at the field was received previously.	EFERENCES
25X1 1954, an airfield was observed twest of Kamenica whose the manica whose took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers, either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind one on to; was next to the harracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignis on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Emenica sirfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and I three-story building was constructed in the southance active active the field was received previously.	AGES		-25X1
1954, an airfield was observed. The statements of Kamenica ilroad line 25X1 The field covered and meters. It was covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers, either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with g wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignic on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were baucally parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the lossition of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south. The information that Coech parachute units A actice at the field was received previously.	REMARKS	iniomation
The field covered an covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the Tocation of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southaction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactic at the field was received previously.			25X1
The field covered an covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southaction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactic at the field was received previously.
The field covered an accovered with the field covered and covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southaction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactic at the field was received previously.
The field covered an covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southaction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactic at the field was received previously.
The field covered an airfield was observed invest of Kamenica ilroad line N/2154 E). The field covered an aproximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactive in the field was received previously.
The field covered an airfield was observed illocad line (1856 No. 187154 E). The field covered an aproximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southaction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactic at the field was received previously.
The field covered an covered west of Kamenica ilroad line (1856 Novered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactive at the field was received previously.
The field covered an concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignis on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and I three-story building was constructed in the southaction in the southwestern section of the field and I three-story building was constructed in the southaction active the field was received previously.
The field covered an animal and the concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and I three-story building was constructed in the southwestern section of the field and I three-story building was constructed in the southwestern section of the field and three-story building was constructed in the southwestern section of the field was received previously.
The field covered an another to the barracks took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and I three-story building was constructed in the southwestern section of the field and I three-story building was constructed in the southwestern section of the field and I three-story building was constructed in the southwestern section of the field was received previously.
1954, an airfield was observed livest of Kamenica ilroad line 1856 No N/2154 E). The field covered an enters. It was covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and I three-story building was constructed in the southwestern the southwestern section of the field and I three-story building was constructed in the southwestern active at the field was received previously.
The field covered an covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southment. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.
The field covered an covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignis on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Eamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactive in the southactive in the field was received previously.
The field covered an covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern cormer of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southaction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactic at the field was received previously.
The field covered an covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southaction at the field are insufficient. According to previously.
The field covered an covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the Tocation of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southaction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactic at the field was received previously.
The field covered an covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the Tocation of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southaction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactic at the field was received previously.
The field covered an covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exefcise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southment. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		ATTENDED TO THE PARTY OF THE PA
The field covered an covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Eamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south- The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.
The field covered an covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers, either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on toy was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Hamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south- The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.			051/4
covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southwaction. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		amenid 7 N/2154 E).	ンちょう
took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers, either air force personnel or parachute troops, who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south- The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.			25 X 1, took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field. Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south- The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		The field covered an	25 X 1,
Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southmeast actice at the field was received previously. 253		1110 1 1014 00 10104 441	25 X 1, served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exefcise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southmeast active at the field was received previously. 253 254 255		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always	·
air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exefcise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southmeater. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field	·
A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southactive information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously. 250		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field	·
A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south-t. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either	·
The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southment. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced	· were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southmeter. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously. 250		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field.	·
were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southmeter. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously. 250		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks.	·
twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southwastern. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks.	·
twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southwastern. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground,	· exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southmeating. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously. 250 250		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the	· comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southment. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and	·
Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southment. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some	· location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southmeating. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously. 25)		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft	·
location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southment. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously. 250		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft	· at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south- The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously. 250 250		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise.	·	25)
hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the southmeter. The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the	·	25)
field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south- The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exefcise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations	·	25)
The information that Czech parachute units actice at the field was received previously.		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exefcise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2	·	25)
actice at the field was received previously. 250 250		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the	·	25)
25X		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exefcise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south-	·	25)
25X		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south-	·	25)
		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south-	·
		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south-	·
		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south-	·
		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south-	·
		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south-	·	25>
		covered with grass and had no concrete runway. The aircraft always took off in E-W direction approximately from the middle of the field Two low wooden buildings in the southeastern corner of the field served as quarters for the guard personnel and for soldiers either air force personnel or parachute troops who temporarily practiced at the field. A small building with a wind cone on top was next to the barracks. The parachutists, who were repeatedly seen practicing on the ground, were recognized by their red round caps without vizor and the parachute insignia on the left breast. About 4 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft were usually parked at the field. Some exercises involved 15 to 20 single-engine and twin-engine aircraft which departed after the exercise. Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location of Kamenica airfield. The statements on the installations at the field are insufficient. According to previous reports, 2 hangars were under construction in the southwestern section of the field and 1 three-story building was constructed in the south-	·	